The Port of Oakland and its partners provide 84,144 jobs in the Bay Area. Port-related jobs yield an average annual salary of $45,342. The Port and its tenants contribute $698 million to state and local taxes. Business revenue, consumer spending and value of goods and services create the Port’s overall economic value of $130 billion.

Jobs supported by the Port are up 15 percent since 2010. These are jobs created by the Port, its tenants and its customers. There is a direct correlation between job growth and the growth of container volumes, airport passengers, and occupancy rates.

- Oakland International Airport has seen over five years of monthly passenger traffic growth.
- The Oakland Seaport broke cargo volume records in 2017 and 2018.
- Occupancy rates have climbed at Jack London Square over the past decade.

The Port of Oakland oversees three businesses: Oakland seaport, Oakland International Airport and 20 miles of waterfront. Together, they power 84,144 jobs across the entire Bay Area.